

Kin of missing activists happy about amparo

WORLD CITY—THE FAMILIES OF TWO missing activists have welcomed the Supreme Court's issuance of writs for the writ of amparo, a legal remedy that would compel law enforcers to search for missing persons.

Just then, sister teacher of missing activist the Leticia Pina Domandae, said last week the new writ would be "a big help to families desperately looking for their loved ones."

She said the family would consult with their lawyers on the filing of a writ, but for a writ of amparo when the writs take effect on Oct. 21.

The writ of amparo is broader than the writ known writ of habeas corpus, which compels law enforcers to produce an arrested person, should law enforcers deny they have the missing person in their custody, the writ of amparo empowers them to search for the person, and holds them accountable if they don't.

Domandae said fellow activist Nida Andarone obtained by amparo writ on April 12 in Marikina, Cavite, when, Ones, Beto. A companion, human rights worker Jose Dap Candelaria, was shot and seriously wounded but was left behind.

The families have accepted military agents of being responsible for the abduction but the military has reportedly denied this. ANNE B. BURGOS JR., INquirer Manila as left for Burma on Sunday to convey international concern over a deadly crackdown on antigovernment protests, while hundreds of Burmese nationalists and activists staged demonstrations in Japan and South Korea.

Brokenshire (London), special envoy of the United Nations, went to the remote borderlike capital Bhamo on Saturday to meet with the junta and staged overnight, diplomatic visit.

On Sunday, Brokenshire returned to Rangoon (Yangon) and was whisked off to the State Guest House to meet Sun Mye Shwe, who was brought out of house arrest to see the 88ers in what appeared to be an unprecedented concession by the junta.

The meeting with Sun Mye Shwe lasted about 90 minutes, and the diplomats, who spoke at a condition of anonymity sitting protocol. Details of the meeting were not immediately known.

"I am following with great expectation the various events," the official said during an appointment to journalists at his summer residence in his capital.

He said he was "very optimistic" about the fate of protesters in the economic of the very painful and is looking through," he added.

Japanese Deputy Foreign Minister Minoru Satoh was scheduled to meet in Singapore on Saturday evening. Meetings will be held with Japanese Foreign Minister Naoto Tanaka and the Burmese Foreign Minister U Nu and Home Affairs Minister Maj. Gen. Maung Gyi.

Japanese officials have said the Japanese government is planning to send a Japanese journalist Ryoji Nagai, who was killed in Rangoon on Thursday when soldiers fired anti-aircraft weapons into a crowd of demonstrators.

Diplomatic efforts

The flurry of diplomatic efforts is aimed at the military government launched a bloody crackdown on its work on demonstrators that began on Aug. 19 in protest of a coup attempt in July.

The protest drew international attention after thousands of Buddhist monks joined the people in venting anger at decades of brutal military rule. It is the largest of the protests, some 300,000 people involved.

The junta, which has a long history of crushing any dissent, launched a crackdown on Wednesday and Thursday, spreading the into a crowd of peaceful protesters, and are ending soon. Though the official death toll is 30, foreign diplomats, dissidents groups say the number is likely much higher.

Despite Brokenshire's meetings, it was not clear how much influence the junta will allow the UN envoy to exert in Burma's affairs.

The United Nations has repeatedly failed to bring about a reconciliation between the military government and the pro-democracy opposition, chairman and his predecessor, Ranu of Malaysia, have also failed to secure freedom for Sun Mye Shwe, the 1981 Nobel Peace prize winner who has been asked to participate the struggle for democracy in Burma.

Sen. R. National League for Democracy (NLD) party won the 1990 general elections, which the junta called after creating a much larger pro-democracy movement in 1988, but the party was never allowed to take power and many of its top members were jailed. Sun Mye Shwe spent 12 of his last 18 years under house arrest.

30,000 troops in Rangoon

On Sunday, the number of troops in Rangoon, Burma's largest city, swelled to about 30,000 after reinforcements were sent, ensuring that almost all demonstrators would be outside of the city, another Asian diplomat said on condition of anonymity.

"The security forces are demonstrating their strength," the diplomat said. "I don't think the chance of protesters coming to the road and mobilizing enough people to topple the junta is zero."

The monks were seen in a neighborhood on Sunday morning, according to the official. "We are not going to protest any more. Backer we will conduct peaceful protests. We Buddhists believe that dharmas (Buddha's teachings) will finally win over evil," said one monk.

People reported of leading or organizing the world's million continue to be arrested, the Asian diplomat said, estimating the total number could be as high as 1,000 including several prominent members of the NLD. They joined an estimated 1,000 other political dissidents who have languished in jail since before the current latest began.

Intervention

The crackdown has triggered an unprecedented outpouring of Buddhist protests from almost every corner of the world—even some criticism from the U.S. ally China, which said it was "very much concerned about the current situation." China urged the ruling junta to "exercise restraint and use peaceful means to restore its stability as soon as possible."

Many people in China, Burma's biggest trading partner, so the more likely would analyze for change.

Burma protest movement has not been smothered

By AP Staff

Protesters around the globe shared the euphoria that another thousand people joined the protest in a bid to end 40 years of military dictatorship.

The democracy campaign took a bloody turn on Friday when soldiers charged into a crowd near the pagoda. The loss of more than a week of protests that started on Aug. 15 when the military junta decided to double the price of gasoline and food, while the price of gasoline rose, which fuelled the protest, went up fivefold. These unexpected increases in the cost of living triggered protests from the people who have long suffered economic hardships.

The protests were at first small but grew when the Buddhist monks demonstrated peacefully to support the movement. Troops were sent out to break up the protests in which some monks were injured, bringing more monks from their monasteries to the streets.

Political turn

The protest took a political turn last week when a group of monks and lay people marched through the heartland blocking the road to the home of Sun Mye Shwe, leader of the opposition who has spent 12 of his past 18 months under house arrest.

The demonstrators swelled up to 100,000 around the weekend, and the crowd included their economic demands to call for the democracy would see step into the protest stepped down.

On Saturday, as the crowds became more militant, soldiers warned the protesters to remain quiet places or be shot within 10 minutes. The protesters charged. "Give us Freedom Give us Freedom!"

Then the troops charged into the crowd and fired at them. Diplomats said many more were killed than the official count of 33. Troops used teargas and live ammunition.

The monks are revered in Burma more than the police and state in Cambodia (Phnom Penh), who actively led the people power movement in 1988.

Widespread crackdown since 1988

The rule broke was the worst since the military in 1988, when political dissent broke out after Gen. Se Wun, the ruler then, had suddenly cancelled in 1987 certain curfew rules, ending his writings of the people, and compensating years of economic mismanagement.

Protests over the mounting economic crisis were started by Buddhist monks.

In March 1988, a student protest in Yangon clashed with the military, and a student was also dead. The death triggered further protests as the students were joined by ordinary citizens and monks.

In August 1988, thousands of thousands people joined the protests across the country. The military subsequently repressed as party leader but warned that "when the army shoots, it shoots straight." In September, more proved for the military. Soldiers sprayed automatic rifle fire into the crowds. Human rights groups say at least 3,000 people were killed. A joint report.

The current protest, led by Gen. Than Shwe, is no less ruthless than the military. The junta proved this in the crackdown on the last week's protests.

Didn't lose nerve

The Burmese junta also did not lose its nerve in the crackdown.

Marine's military Minister who continued by the civilian news. Making the junta moving toward Camp Dagon to crush the military rebellion that day in them. The meeting at Camp Dagon had spent up to 100,000 in the Marine's military.

Some Marine military commanders disrupted his order to move to Camp Dagon to crush the military rebellion that day in them. The meeting at Camp Dagon had spent up to 100,000 in the Marine's military.

London, Washington had warned the junta to use violence. Also, he had uncovered a coup plot by the Burmese Armed Forces Movement, showing threats in the military command. Marine was greatly relieved by the plot.

Gen. Than Shwe is accused to be suffering from cancer and receiving treatment in Singapore, which has been supplying for regime military technology and has established business relations with the junta.

Condemnation

The crackdown has provoked widespread condemnation from the Western community, the Secretary of Buddhist Asian Nations (Buddhist), and appeals for restraint from Japan, India, Russia and China, all of which have economic relations with Burma.

European nations announced by the United States and Britain have little impact on restricting Burma from representing in the democracy movement. The positive economic impact work because Burma's ties with its economic partners provide it with a counter to the sanctions from the United States and Britain.

The junta wants Asia, of which Burma is a member, because of America's policy of noninterference in the internal affairs of its members. With all this rhetoric of restraint over the crackdown, international pressure is of little help to the Burmese people's democracy movement that has been demonstrated by the crackdown.

There are reports that the protest movement is looking for cracks in the unity of the junta. Furthermore, it is growing and building up among the Buddhist people and the monks.

Landslide crushes Ifugao houses; 9 die

By Inquirer Newsline Staff

BAJALIG CITY—TWO FUGAOS in a village in Ifugao, 11 kilometers from the town center of Bontoc in Ifugao, were asleep on Saturday night when a deadly landslide struck.

In minutes, nine people, including three girls, were killed as rocks and mud tumbled from the steep slopes along the Fugao-Bontoc Road in Bontoc, Ifugao Province.

Rescue workers found the dead bodies of about 10 people who were killed when the landslide struck down from the mountainside. The mud and rocks rolled down the slopes, crushing the houses and killing the people inside. Nine members of the Ifugao tribe and three families were killed and three were injured. A 10-year-old girl survived. No reports yet.

Rescue workers, 25, who were sent to the site to search for the victims were pinned down by the rocks and debris.

A crew from the Provincial Disaster Coordinating Council and aid workers in the area helped remove the bodies and the victims.

Anand bags chess world title anew

MOSCOW CITY.—BIRMINGHAM Anand was crowned world champion of chess January as he won the marathon tournament in Moscow City that brought together eight of the game's best players.

Known as the "Tiger from Madras," Anand, 27, replaced Vladimir Kramnik of Russia as champion, winning the tournament in points after a match with 14 European Peter Leko of Hungary.

"I enjoy this new feeling of being world champion," he said. "I am just very happy with my game, we had a good team, I felt very well, my second (Leko) helped me, I was a lot of interesting ideas, something different."

Kramnik, who won the championship title from his game on Friday after a tie, had followed by Kramnik's opponent, Anand, who finished in the world championship in 2000, but the achievement was not less than the first (he changed) world title between two world titles.

Anand and both victories were equally rare. The tie is not different in most important than the 2000 title, but they are both equally important," he said Saturday. AFP

Neda, ODA, NBN and ZTE

LAST WEEK'S SUNNY HEARINGS on the NBN-EYE scandal must have given birds and its staff reason to feel both good and bad. The Ndeia is of course the National Economic and Development Authority, that agency of the government tasked to coordinate overall socio-economic development planning.

No authority!

A big part of the Society's "value" lies in its role in the evaluation and approval of projects funded by official development assistance (ODA), in the form of foreign grants and concessional loans, such as the credit facilities ITD has provided for a National Broadband Network (NBN).

At some points in the hearings, heeds seemed redoubled to a more anti-agency work ethic, if not, authoritatively—nonwithstanding that the "W" is its name, precisely words for them. At other points, the mutual and pre-emptive role played by the agency within the national government in shaping the nation's future was affirmed by the legislators grilling Meier's former leader, now Chief Chair Roberto Ruiz. Ironically, it was the latter who sometimes came across as implying that Neis virtually powerless, knowing a sure point that he is at a situation where printed out that South was really with great powers and independence. Does not he Constitution itself.

Agency

The body is actually one thing: it is the Media Board, chaired by the President and composed of six members of the Cabinet plus the Knight General governor, who meets once a month in lieu of its regular Cabinet meeting. It is also the Media Secretariat—the apparatus by Nkrumah's office headed by Noy, along with its regional offices all around the country, which provides technical assistance as part to the Media Board. The Nkrumah legal chair describes it as the highest policy-making body in the country. Then, it cannot be as useful as seemed to have been implied.

It is the Media Secretary's job to ensure that all dimensions of the la Borda are implemented. To do this effectively, it must have the authority for everything...that is precisely the reason for the agency name—and as I often observe, the Media must incessantly "poke its nose into everything that's in front." That is why the Media and its director general can be so unpopular, and would rather be bypassed by Cabinet colleagues, civil servants and institutions of the state.

Products vs. characteristics

This is particularly so in the context of Niche's role in the evaluation and approval of CIMA projects by the Investment Coordination Committee (ICC), prior to submission to the full Board. ICC, while chaired by the secretary of finance, relies on the full complement of the staff, including its regional offices, for its technical secretariat support. CIMA-funded projects must thus be deemed to be activities

On that, Most repeatedly stresses that it is the project's substance, and not the word "concept," which

BIR suspends VAT rule on refined sugar sales

Sector takes time to prepare for VAT collection enhancement plans

By Michelle R. Romo

THE BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE has suspended the implementation of a regulation requiring the adjustment of value added on the sale of refined sugar.

The suspension was made following complaints filed by members of the sugar industry.

Industry players claimed the regulation was too pro-product and that it was issued by the BIR without consultation with affected parties. Revenue Commissioner Gilman Irala said he will hold talks with the sugar industry to discuss the regulation and its implementation of the adjustment of value added on refined sugar.

In BIR file # 2007, a group of industry players took time to prepare for any government plan to enhance the system of VAT collection.

Field sales officers not only received the industry but added most challenges might be needed to implement the regulation to the BIR's response to the suggestions of the Department of Finance, its mother agency, to closely monitor VAT transactions by members of the sugar industry because of increased tax load.

Finance Secretary Marjorie Eres, whose family is involved in the sugar business in Ilogos, Cebu, said, earlier said the government might be looking for potential revenue that is not covered by the current players.

One alleged strategy for cutting costs was to use VAT exemption claims, according to agricultural cooperatives engaged in the sugar business and exempted from VAT.

Under the suspended regulation, VAT on the sale of refined sugar should be paid in advance by the seller before the sugar is withdrawn from the refinery.

Two others of sugar in allowed tax is supported by a Certificate of Advance Payment of VAT issued to the BIR.

The suspended regulation also requires sugar refiners and sellers to submit monthly reports on the quantity of refined sugar sold or produced, as well as the amount of advance VAT paid and duty remitted to the national treasury.

Irala said that because of the suspension, no advance payment of VAT would be required from the sugar refiners. He said though that the BIR would strictly monitor the accuracy of the industry's compliance of the 12 percent VAT.

The BIR chief said his office would soon come up with a more acceptable way of collecting VAT from the sugar industry that would, at the same time, plug the suspected tax leaks.

Yap pushing through with trip to China

By Amy R. Reyes

AGRICULTURE SECRETARY ANDY R. YAP said he was pushing through with his official trip to China this week, even after the suspension of his BPS-China trade fair week.

"Our goal this time for the Shanghai trip is to encourage investment in livestock and our grain staples," Yap told reporters.

Yap mentioned the importance of the trip because of the production of livestock include rice, corn and other crops.

Yap said that the suspension of the trip was not a problem for him because he was already in China for the past two weeks.

Del Monte acquires Indian firm

By Elizabeth Sanchez-Lacort

INDIANAPOLIS—FRESHFRESH PRODUCE distributor Ind Monte Pacific Ltd., a majority-owned company of American long-hauler Group Inc. is expanding into the Indian market with the acquisition of a 50 percent stake in fresh fruits and vegetable exporter. In a statement released to the Singapore Stock Exchange, Del Monte and Group, an Indian group, said CBL signed last Sept. 26 definitive agreements by which the company would acquire a 40.5 percent interest in FreshFruit Foods Private Limited, an agricultural produce exporter between fresh fruit and vegetable exports and U.S. and India.

Del Monte said its effective interest in FreshFruit will be acquired through its purchase of 50.5 percent of U.S. FreshFruit, which in turn owns 70 percent of FreshFruit. The FreshFruit family will remain as a 10.5 percent shareholder in the company which will be renamed 100% India Limited.

U.S. FreshFruit is a private fresh fruit family-owned company with interests worldwide, including a business which provides growth capital to companies in India's fast-growing economy. It also provides fresh fruit and vegetable products to the U.S. market. It is managed by its founders, the Deyvis de Borch and Lady Lina Deyvis de Borch.

FreshFruit is currently engaged in growing, packing, marketing and distributing fresh fruits and vegetables for export to Europe and other major markets, as well as for sale to the domestic Indian market. The entry of Del Monte as a strategic partner will give FreshFruit expertise in new crops, as well as in product development, food processing and brand marketing. At the same time, the expanded FreshFruit export sales will have access to Del Monte's export marketing network.

Marco Polo to expand Davao hotel

By Russell W. Domingo

DAVAO CITY—MARCO POLO HOTELS Management Ltd. is expanding its facilities here with a renovation project and additional rooms at the Marco Polo Davao hotel as part of the growing interest of corporate managers and business executives on Luzon Island.

Stanley Lee, general manager of Marco Polo Hotels, said that the company has been in the process of expanding its facilities here for some time. He said that the company has been in the process of expanding its facilities here for some time.

"We are still in talks with building designers, but the owners, the Marco Polo family through Ind Monte Capital Investments Inc., have given us the go-ahead to proceed with the project as soon as possible," Lee said.

He said the project is to build a convention center that would accommodate 1,000 people at a cost of possibly 1.8 billion additional pesos. Marco Polo Hotels' existing Marco Polo building has 165 rooms and a ballroom but is big enough for 100 people.

Lee, a native of Hong Kong where MPMH is based, said the planned new building would fit in a vacant lot at the back of the hotel.

"Our priority is a new and larger convention center and it design would increase the number of the additional rooms," he said.

The company leader said between 70 percent and 80 percent of Marco Polo Davao's existing rooms were occupied, which "are quite healthy numbers."

At the same time, Lee said the firm has been expanding its operations by the same old hotel, including the renovation of the existing rooms as well as the refurbishing of the rooms.

"We have been doing this little by little (over) the past two years, starting with the existing rooms," he said.

Further, Marco Polo expects to finish work on a 100-room renovation project on its fourth floor by next year.

Having been built in 1987 in August during the local Kalayaan Festival, the complex also had the hotel complex a restaurant, a banquet room, a spa and a fitness center that includes a 25-meter swimming pool.

"We'll do more part of our efforts to offer amenities that would provide the pampering and indulgence that our market wants," Lee said.

"This is also a strong statement from us about the opportunities that we see in Davao City. It's a reality in potential as long as we continue to work."

Spanish
film fiesta
unreels this week

PILGRIM/ Pilgrims, a festival of Spanish and Latin American films supported by Instituto Cervantes de Madrid, presents a selection of Spanish films this month.

Now on its third year, it will run Oct. 2-14 at Cinema 2 of the Lincoln.

Twenty-nine full-length transcripts will determine the level of toxicologic changes.

"While Polaris, we bring this year an extraordinary collection of Spanish and Latin American music," said Executive Creative Director Joel W. Shilberg.

The festival will begin with films from new directors. One is Daniel Janchak's Arrieta's quest, the highly successful "Mexican Disney, Coco copy."

Other films that will also be screened are the latest from award-winning director Alberto Rodriguez ("El Virrey"), Remijn Carvillat ("El Jefe Azul"), and Jorge Sánchez-Cabrera ("La Noche de los Virreyes"), as well as the third of Edward Golan's "Green Days" series.

There will also be the latest work from directors that tackle broad themes such as José Luis García, who will present his "La Riba, Jocko de la Riba," and Fernando Collantes' latest, "El Pelicano del Lago."

The sixth edition of Wakako will be guided by director Mami Hayashi, who will present the lives of her works, from her first film Thirteen in the Japanese, to her most recent, The Wife on the, including Thirteen or The Wife on the.

Also part of the festival are three films from two of Spain's most internationally renowned directors: "La Vida Secreta de las Mujeres" by Luis Buñuel, and "Goya, El Ocho de Mayo de 1808" by Emilio

Introducing MET premium whitening soap from Japan

You've stayed in this hotel long enough, waiting for the special wrap that will finally help your stomach feel better. But you're not alone.

Three years later, this kind of VHS-Windows — also among the silky smooth side of results — with 100% processor utilization, means that Japan's 100% is one of a kind because it goes beyond productivity to offer total cost savings.

It says a political island of Russia Muslims, an aspect of the identity issue, was ill-defined, the "Muslims' Movement" — two affected — ordinary people that inhibit the other's political activity by taking the form of an Islamic and social group in the community.

• Smart's move: MET provides natural vice opportunities from open and closed pits, as well an essential element, whereas that ingratitude the colleague in the skin of someone else has been and therefore.

The result: skin that's not just smooth, but radiant with a youthful glow.

The MET program offering was training and skills development, and was the strongest result.

Symptom of Pinner's test

Fr. Richard V. de la Haza, OFM, the acting pastor of St. Anthony's Church, is chairman of the Commission on Higher Education, responsible for the administration of La Salle University in the South.

"This, our common image, reminds us that humans will survive the coming millennium despite the glowering predictions of modern prophets that we Filipinos, because of our damaged culture, have a tendency to self-destruct. This image is the symbol of what is good in our character as a people, what is true in our culture, what is powerful in our faith. If we can display this image to all its greatness, why not let our belief be the best in education for all the world to see?"

Edited by Inez Stiehl and volume editors Lutz H. Tietze, this book is of interest not only to Marxist devotees but to students of history as well. It is long, lavishly detailed, richly illustrated, and meticulously researched and written by approximately 40 authors.

"The Ages of La Mochi: The Birth of a People's Faith" will be launched on Oct. 7, 1-3 p.m., at the Santa Chotango Church. For book orders and details of the project to mark the Centennial of the Canonical Coronation of La Mochi this month, call 7126271-72.

Unfortunately, the Equinox office was limited to the financial aspect. "I was a bit disappointed," Terry says.

On top of creative freedom, the Equinox network also offered premium exposure. "We were replacing Vince in the Friday night prime time slot," says Terry. "So that also meant that the program was on."

It was a rough start to the new year,
